Prof. Dr. Arianeb Mehrabi

Deputy Director – Clinic for General, Visceral and Transplant Surgery – University Hospital Heidelberg

Role in LiSyM-Cancer

- Co-Project leader in SMART-NAFLD
- Contributes patient cohorts, samples and data

Expertise

- Visceral transplant surgery (liver, kidney, pancreas)
- Oncological visceral surgery (liver, pancreas)
- Robot-assisted surgery
- Artificial intelligence HPB surgery
- Modern techniques in oncological visceral surgery
- Significance of up-to-date media in surgical education and training

Degrees

- 2015, Habilitation, University of Heidelberg
- 2008, Doctorate in medicine, University of Heidelberg
- 1991 - 1998, Studies of Human Medicine, University of Heidelberg
- 1987 - 1990, Medicine Studies, Azad University Tehran, Iran

Professional Experience

- Since 2022, Senior Managing Consultant, Department of General, Visceral and Transplantation Surgery, Heidelberg University Hospital
- Sinc 2022, Deputy Director, Department of General, Visceral and Transplantation Surgery, Heidelberg University Hospital
- Since 2016, Division head, Liver and transplantation surgery, Department of General, Visceral and Transplantation Surgery, Heidelberg University Hospital
- 2013 - 2016, Deputy division head, Visceral Transplantation Surgery, and Hepatobiliary Surgery, Department of General, Visceral and Transplantation Surgery, Heidelberg University Hospital
- Since 2002, Department of General, Visceral and Transplantation Surgery, Heidelberg University Hospital
- 2000 - 2001, Research fellow, funded by DSE, Institute of Experimental Surgery, Heidelberg University Hospital
- 1998 - 1999, Internship, Department of General, Visceral and Transplantation Surgery, Heidelberg University Hospital,

Honors and Awards (Selection)

- since 2019, Member of Advisory Board Liver Cancer Center Heidelberg (LCCH), National Center for Tumor Diseases (NCT) Heidelberg
- Member of several hepato, pancreatic and biliary associations, as well as surgery and transplant associations